Once you've gotten your glam squad in place, and all of your beauty appointments have been set, it is time to ensure that you remain on schedule and calm right up until the magical day. This means that investing in a good wedding planner and personal bridal assistant is more than worth it!

- ❖ Wedding planners take care of all of the logistics like, managing the budget, finding the right location for the wedding and the reception, and most importantly, make your wedding day theme a reality. They do all of the negotiating with vendors and usually do a little something special to make your day memorable not only to you, but your guests as well.
- ❖ Personal bridal assistant will be at your beck and call before, during and after the wedding if necessary. They take care of you and only you. Once you hire your PBA, you'll want to upload all of your wedding schedule appointments into her blackberry. This means, gown fittings, food tasting, personal training sessions, anything that relates to your wedding day is to be communicated to your assistant. You'll also want to make sure that the wedding planner and personal bridal assistant meet so that they can also sync their blackberries.

On your wedding day, it is the personal assistant's job to make sure that you are on time from the moment you wake-up. They make sure you eat, are ready for the make-up artist and photographer. And most importantly, they will make sure that you arrive at the wedding location on time. After the nuptials and prior to the reception, your assistant will be waiting for you at the reception location to help you change into your party dress and during the reception, the PBA will be available to go back and forth to the buffet table so you can just sit and have a great time. Lastly, your assistant can pack your honeymoon suitcase.

Investing in these important details will make your wedding day a true fairytale.
